Jessica Antwi-Boasiako

Facilitator

Determined to demystify the creative industries, Jessica has successfully designed, produced and facilitated multiple learning and development initiatives for the Creative, Culture, and Education sectors to spearhead accessibility, professional development, and social entrepreneurship for young people and creative practitioners from underrepresented communities. Purpose-led and passionate about diversity and inclusion, she thrives on building and nurturing relationships at all levels, and embraces cross-sector collaboration.

Charlotte Mafham

Communication and Administration Co-ordinator

Charlotte is a freelancer both within the theatre industry and as a corporate events producer. An actor-musician, she trained at Arts Ed and has performed on stages from the West End to the Sydney Opera House, as well as touring the UK. Her London credits include 'The Snail and the Whale', (Apollo Theatre, West End), 'Sing-a-Story' (Wigmore Hall), 'Henry V' (Asylum Chapel), 'Troilus & Cressida' and 'Coriolanus' (Tristan Bates); 'Rumpelstiltskin' (Lyric, Hammersmith), 'Nicholas Nickleby' and 'The Caucasian Chalk Circle' (The Space), and 'The Just So Stories' (The King's Head). Charlotte was a puppeteer in the finale parade at the Queen's 90th birthday 'Patron's Lunch'. Event clients have included UK Finance, Ofsted and Bates Wells LLP and she also regularly works for The Little Angel Theatre and Kings Place. Charlotte plays viola for the Whitehall Orchestra and the charity fundraising Amici Orchestra and is an associate artist for Certain Dark Things theatre company

Marie Wilson

Bookkeeper

I have over 15 years' experience in financial management as a Fellow of the ACCA and have worked as Finance Director for The Arts Theatre for the past 6 years.

Miranda Yates

Access Manager

I've worked in theatre and the arts for over 30 years. My work in access is informed by a broad experience of the many different perspectives and roles that weave together to create and support live performance. In 2020 for Fuel, I was Access Manager for the Freelance Task Force. I currently work as Access Officer at the Almeida Theatre, I'm also a freelance theatre access consultant, audio describer and captioner.

I'm passionate about promoting and supporting access and inclusion for people who are D/deaf, disabled and neurodivergent because I believe that high quality access is something everyone should enjoy. I'm particularly interested in creative approaches to access and see collaboration with creative teams as vital to enabling the broadest audience to engage with theatre and the arts.

About the programme:

Creative freelancers, particularly those in the performing arts, have been hit hard by COVID-19. From the very start of restrictions, up to 60% of freelancers had lost all of their work, and it is estimated that at least 200,000 Londoners have been excluded from any Government support. The pandemic has also highlighted existing inequalities facing creative freelancers – including a lack of security at work, unequal access to freelance opportunities, and a lack of a basic safety net.

This programme will enable a diverse group of freelancers in the culture sector to come together to explore and make recommendations on the future of freelancing. It will support ambitions to improve working conditions and training, as well as advocating for the statutory changes needed for freelancers.

Creative Freelancers: Shaping London's Recovery will amplify the voices of the self-employed in the culture sector, giving space for freelancers to shape and demonstrate their role in the recovery of London's creative and cultural industries, as well as in wider civic spaces.

The programme brings together up to 50 diverse freelancers from across the performing arts, including performers, directors, writers and designers, with up to 50 leaders of partner organisations, funders, councils and other key decision makers.

How will it work?

Freelancers will be paired with partner organisations to develop new plans to improve working conditions and job and training support for freelancers. They will collaborate in focused working groups during this six-month research project, supported by a freelance facilitation team. The cohort will feed into the work to improve job creation and retention for freelancers, including the development of a new Freelancers' Charter, and take part in advocacy and lobbying.

The programme builds on the first national Freelance Task Force initiated by Fuel as a pilot in April 2020, in which 150 organisations sponsored 169 freelancers across the country. It builds on the evaluation and recommendations by Morris Hargreaves McIntyre, which highlighted the positive impact of the pilot, its promising potential, and suggested that external funding would improve future work in this area.

Programme aims

This project will empower creative freelancers in the performing arts sector to make recommendations for London's recovery from COVID-19 in distinct areas:

- Improving job conditions, creation and retention for creative freelancers
- Advocating for an improved statutory position for creative freelancers
- Establishing skills and training opportunities for creative freelancers

This programme will support the civic role of creative freelancers in London's recovery from COVID-19, in policymaking and in delivery.
